NOW TWENTY

County Now Boarding That Number of Prisoners.

Albert Craig, pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication in Mayor Kyte's court Thursday morning and was fined $1 and costs, amounting to $1.80. He was taken to Brownstown on No. 7 by Chief Moritz. This makes twenty prisoners, mostly able bodied men, sweltering in the heat at the county jail and eating "grub" paid for by the honest laboring people of the county. This breaks all records and is the first time for several years that this number of prisoners has been confined in the county jail at one time. If the rock pile is not brought into use it is about time we are making some extensions in our habitual criminal statutes and giving some of these offenders a position in some of the shops within the walls of the Jeffersonville Reformatory. There are a great many people in Indiana who are in favor of habitual criminal laws and if there are lawless people who continually violate any and every law that comes in their way they should be dealt with accordingly. If about a dozen habitual criminals from here were given terms of from one to three years in the state prison we would have them off our hands for awhile and the action would have a salutary effect on others. Laws should be so framed and executed that the criminals and not the people should suffer. There have been some very extreme penalties inflicted here some times on habitual violators when no lighter punishment seemed to have the effect of punishment. The indications are that if more of these severe penalties were inflicted there would be fewer of these petty violations. The heavy fines are sometimes effective but often the jail sentences accomplish more in the right direction.

Longs for Sea Breeze.

The Indianapolis News publishes the picture of John Dale Hodapp and makes comment as follows:

J. D. P. Hodapp of the local naval recruiting station, 401 Federal building, longs for the cool sea breezes these summer days. He is a native of Seymour and has the distinction of having served as page in the State Senate in 1901. A year or two later he joined the navy and re-enlisted in 1907, just too late to make the trip with the Atlantic squadron.

Hodapp was aboard the Illinois when its racing boat was defeated by the Kearsarge's boat in Guantanamo bay, off Cuba.

"I'll always remember that race," said Hodapp, when he looked at a reproduction of the race at the Grand. Men on board the Illinois lost $14,000 in bets that day."

Local naval recruiting officers attended the show in uniforms and recognized many of the sailors who are made to talk by the actors behind the curtain. Lieut. Cressy saluted Lieutenant Helwig, officiating in the firing of a torpedo, just through force of habit.

Hearts Party.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season was the hearts party given by Misses Myrtle Bennett and Dorothy Sandau at the home of Miss Bennett Thursday afternoon, in honor of their visitors, Misses Lida Fleniken of Bowling Green, Ky., Mabel Heath, of Jamestown, N. Y., and Alice Pierle, of Cincinnati. The guests were very pleasantly surprised to receive the announcement of Miss Sandau's engagement to Mr. Herbert S. Dell. The house was artistically decorated with hearts and cut flowers, which were in keeping with the occasion. A delicious luncheon was served consisting of a salad course followed by an ice. The following out of town guests were present: Mrs. Elgin Marsh, Mitchell, Ind., Mrs. Frank Short and Mrs. John Rhiem, Louisville, Mrs. Simeon Jones, Cincinnati and Mrs. John Wilhelm, Indianapolis.

Sues Railroad.

Claude Malott and Noble Malott whose store at Tunnelton was destroyed by fire last November have filed suit against the B. & O. S. W. for $9500.

The fire which destroyed a great part of the town is supposed to have started from a spark from an engine. Several other suits of a similar nature have been filed against the B. & O. on account of same fire.

Herman Steinker went to Columbus last evening to meet a friend with whom he will go to Indianapolis to enlist in the navy. He formerly worked at Grelle's meat market.

MARRIED.

SCHNEIDER-ALBERRING.

Martin A. Schneider and Miss Cordelia E. Alberring were married Thursday evening at 6:30 at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Alberring at 313 S. Chestnut street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Philip Schmidt, pastor of the German Luther church. Four little girls, Thelma Alberring, Lydia Steinwedel, Marian Alberring and Gaynell Breitfield acted as flower bearers and led the march into the front parlor where the ceremony was performed. They were followed by the attending couples Emil Schneider and Miss Lisette Alberring, Carl Steinwedel and Martha Schepman, Lulu Alberring and Otto Rottger. The bride and groom came last. The bride wore a princess gown of French lawn and a veil and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaids were dressed in white and carried shower bouquets of smilax and pink and white sweetpeas. The parlor was decorated with palms and ferns and cut flowers. After the ceremony and congratulations a wedding supper was served to the fifty guests who were present, including mostly the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends. The dining room was beautifully decorated in pink and white.

Many beautiful and valuable presents were received, including silverware and other table-ware, hand painted china, furniture and numerous other articles.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Sherman and son, Herbert, of Indianapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schneider and son, of Brownstown, Otto Rottger and Miss Ada Beardsley, of Holland, Ind.

Mr. Schneider is the son of Mrs. George Schneider who resides west on the Brownstown road and is employed by the Ahlbrand Carriage Co. The bride has resided in this city for some time and has a wide circle of friends. Mr. Schneider has just completed a beautiful residence at the corner of Laurel and Walnut streets. This will be furnished at once and they will go to house-keeping probably some time next week.

GODFREY-RUCKER.

A report went the rounds this afternoon that Thomas Godfrey and Miss Lulu Rucker, both of this city, were married on March 4th. They have remained apart since that time but it is said will go to housekeeping soon at 419 N. Poplar street. The report says that the marriage took place in Indianapolis and that it was kept secret as a surprise to their friends. Mr. Godfrey is a machinist, electrician and stationary engineer and is at present employed at the New Pearl Laundry as engineer and washer. Mrs. Godfrey is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. N. C. Rucker, of Indianapolis avenue, and has many friends and acquaintances in this city.

The Dog Poisoner.

The dog poisoner is today doubtless contemplating the result of his deadly work, but he is keeping it all to himself. He is not boasting of what he has done and he dare not come out in the open. He does his mischief in the dark and keeps himself out of sight. So far he has not been apprehended but some of these days he will be. A distributor of poison can not always keep himself shaded from the public. The tracks of this person are only fairly well covered now and all that will be necessary to get positive proof will be to make use of the information now possessed and watch for more. The dogs killed yesterday were one each belonging to the following persons: Price Matlock, Fred Eudaly, Frank Pasley and Otto Bauermeister. One belonging to C. C. Frey was poisoned but by prompt treatment was saved.

Going to Boston.

The drill team of New Albany Company, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, together with a number of the members of the company, will leave Sunday morning for Boston to attend the Knights of Pythias National Encampment. The drill team will participate in the prize drill contest. The party will go on a special car over the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern

DIED.

GRIFFITH.—Roderick, the fifteen-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wells Griffith, of Terre Haute, Indiana, died Thursday. Interment at Riverview cemetery, Seymour, Saturday, August 1, at 3 p. m.

Commission House.

M. F. Everback will open a commission store in the room at the corner of High street and Broadway tomorrow, August 1. Mr. Everback has had much experience in this line of business as the people well know.

Business Increase.

Business has increased in the freight service on the Pennsylvania line till another man, a Mr. Reed, brother of Bruce Reed, has been put on at the freight house here. The Pennsylvania laid off one man here a few months ago on account of a slack in business but there has been quite an increase during the past few weeks. This improvement in the outlook at the present time indicates that the coming campaign has had something to do with holding business in check. It is strange how quick our political enemies contend that this improvement is only temporary and for political effect. A great many people regret to their sorrow that the period of business depression following the presidential election of 1892 could not have been controlled in the same way by the party in power. The political effect there would certainly have lessened the overwhelming majorities against the democrats during the past three presidential elections. But the panic of that administration was the genuine thing and it was not to be headed off at the will of politicians, manufacturers, business men or any other person or persons. It was a panic that lasted until the republicans were returned to power.

Charivaris.

A large number of people old and young and middleaged, called at the Hirtzel home on E. Second street Wednesday evening to pay their respects to the new married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon, with tin pans, horns and other such musical instruments. After keeping up the din for several minutes they were given a treat and went away but returned presently with their numbers very greatly increased.

Shortly before eight o'clock Thursday evening about seventy-five young people called at the Alberring home on S. Chestnut street to furnish a little "tin pan" music in honor of the Schneider-Alberring wedding. One of the noisiest instruments was a circular saw. Tin pans, buckets, cow bells and numerous other articles of like nature soon succeeded in bringing out a generous treat for everybody.

The Tunnel Murder.

Patrolman Meyers, of the B. & O. S. W., was in this city again this morning and went west on No. 7. He is still at work on the murder case at the tunnel and it is probable that arrests of one or more persons, who are supposed at least to have guilty knowledge of the murder will yet be made. No arrests had yet been made at the time of going to press this afternoon but we should not be at all surprised to have something of the kind to report Saturday. The interest in the case does not seem to have abated in the least and the citizens of that locality and the friends of the murdered watchman will not be at all satisfied till everything possible has been done to solve the mystery.

Another Step Upward.

Dudley O. McGobney, formerly of Columbus, has been appointed to the chair of international law in Tulane University at New Orleans. For the past year or two he has been a member of the Illinois University faculty at Champaign. He is a young man who is achieving a high degree of success. He is a graduate of the Columbus high school and when a student at Indiana University he was a star football player. He was a teacher in the Philippines two or three years and wrote a text book on civil government that is now used in the schools in our far off island possessions.

Wrestling Match.

Tonight is the time when "Kid" Wiggam, of Indianapolis, and Young Dematral, of Chicago, will contest in a wrestling match at the Majestic Theatre. Wiggam claims championship of Indiana and expects to win the match tonight, though he admits that he has a strong man to go against. There will also be a match between Donald Hopkins, of this city, and Carl Flora, of Columbus. It is said that the advance sale of tickets insures a good crowd. First match begins at 8:30.

New Automobile.

Jerry Anderson and family received their new Buick automobile Thursday evening which adds another to the number of excellent machines purchased in this city recently by enterprising citizens.

Dreamland Tonight.

SHEEP AND DOGS

Farmers Suffered Some Losses in Flocks Last Year.

Dogs and disease killed more sheep in Indiana during the last year than during the year previous, according to figures which have just been compiled by the Indiana Bureau of Statistics. A total of 3,933 more sheep lost their lives during this year than during 1907. The number was 57,905, as against 53,972 last year.

Notwithstanding that more sheep were killed by dogs and disease, there are more sheep in Indiana now than at this time last year, the Hoosier farmers now owning 673,572 head as against 635,094 head last year. There was a big decrease, however, in the number of sheep sold, the total number being 464,116, as against 524,907 the year before.

There was also a decrease in wool production. The figures of the bureau show that 3,829,015 pounds of wool were clipped during the last year. The wool clip during the year preceeding amounted to 3,918,176 pounds.

The counties ranking highest as wool producers this year are: Steuben, 209,981 pounds; Lagrange, 168,894; Noble, 132,382; Dekalb, 128,885; Allen 114,973; Kosciusko, 104,174.

Brakeman Long Injured.

Paris Long, of N. Walnut street, a brakeman on the B. & O. S. W. was quite seriously injured near Cincinnati during the middle part of the day Thursday. He was swinging on the side of a car when a platform struck him below the shoulder. Two of his ribs were broken loose and he seems to have some internal injuries the extent of which can not be told at this time. He went on into Cincinnati on his train and was brought back to this city last night on No. 3. Mr. Long thought at first he was not injured seriously but when he was examined by his physician he learned more of the nature of his injuries. He is pretty well bandaged up and will probably be kept off duty for a few weeks at least even if he has no serious internal injuries. It is said that he knew of the platform coming near the track but thought he was close enough to the car to pass through without being hurt.

Auto Disabled.

W. P. Masters and E. L. Brown went to the North Vernon fair yesterday in their autos each taking a party of friends. On the road home near Queensville, Mr. Brown experienced some trouble with his machine, the chain refusing to stay in place. The supposition was that an axle was sprung in some way after the party left the fair grounds. All those in the disabled machine except Mr. Brown were brought into Mr. Master's auto and were brought on home. Assistance was sent to Mr. Brown from here this morning.

Good News of A Great Thing.

That has Become the Talk of Thousands.

There is a death at the end of every life, but as we travel on toward the grave we hope to be blessed with good health, and when we have a friend who has suffered for years with some painful malady, it is good news, indeed, when we are told of that friend's complete recovery, and when we hear of the remedy that made the cure we are bound to have confidence in it. This is why Root Juice is so well spoken of over the country.

Mr. Sam Anderson, a well known farmer living near Gas City, Ind., said: "I'll tell you, Root Juice is a great medicine. I suffered for years with rheumatism and stiff joints and when I awoke in the mornings I could hardly raise myself from the bed. My feet and hands were sore, stiff and painful, more especially during rainy weather. I had a great deal of trouble with my back. Root Juice cured one of my neighbors of a bad stomach trouble, so I thought I would give it a trial, although my trouble was entirely different. I purchased a bottle of Root Juice and a 25c bottle of 'Uzelt' Pain Oil; I rubbed my back and joints well with the oil and took Root Juice precisely as directed. I felt so much better after the first week that I bought six more bottles of the Juice, and also some of the liniment. In a few weeks every symptom of my trouble was gone. I now feel that the cure is permanent and am advising all my sick friends to try Root Juice." Root Juice has proved its wonderful merit to hundreds of local people. For sale by W. F. Peter Drug Co. $1 a bottle, or three bottles for $2.50.

Improvements.

The concrete work is being pushed to completion in the second ward. A number of concrete contractors, including William Railing, Seth Shields, Samuel Hopkins, John Tasky and others have been putting down concrete curb and gutter on W. Fourth and Fifth streets. This work has been completed on the north side of Fourth street in front of A. P. Carter's lot, two of Halleck Dannel's, DeGolyer's, J. H. Hopewell's, Ben Gillman's, R. J. Barbour's and all the rest of the north side of the street for the next three blocks from Pine street to Chestnut. On the south side of the street the work has all been completed from Lynn street to Chestnut except in front of two pieces property. Most of the work on W. Fifth street has also been completed.

The Seymour Manufacturing Company has been at work for several days on the drive ways about their buildings and yards. The dirt has been hauled from the roads and dumped on the low grounds in the south side of the city park. A space about thirty yards wide and about a hundred fifty yards long has been covered about a foot deep. After removing the dirt from the driveways they are covered with crushed stone from four to ten inches deep. Several carloads of the stone are being used and the improvement will be a great convenience during the winter season and will help the general appearance of the factory grounds.

The works on the new two story residence of John Fox on S. Chestnut street is moving along nicely. The frame work is now about completed. The residence will have about eight rooms and will be covered with a slate roof. The building will be enclosed early in August.

Indiana Tobacco.

Reports received by Mary Stubbs Moore, Chief of the Indiana Bureau of Statistics, indicate that the tobacco yield in Indiana this year will be considerably less than it was last year. The total acreage of tobacco in 1907 was 134,419 and the yield 9,826,200 pounds. The total acreage this year is only 127,736.

The leading tobacco counties in the acreage for 1908 are: Dubois, 115 acres; Franklin, 144; Greene, 60; Jefferson, 1,455; Marion, 84; Ohio, 681; Pike, 206; Randolph, 920; Ripley, 145; Spencer, 2,029; Sullivan, 162; Switzerland, 2,235; Warrick, 1,909; and Wayne, 198. Some of the leading tobacco counties in 1907 were: Spencer, 2,327 acres; Switzerland, 2,099; Warrick, 1,848; Jefferson, 1,242; Randolph, 1,064; Allen, 967; Dearborn, 734; Fountain, 649; Ohio, 577; and Clark, 317.

A failure of the successful bidders to enter into such contracts and bonds upon the acceptance of such proposals will forfeit the checks and the sum of money payable thereon to the city as agreed and liquidated damages for such failure. The common council reserves the right to reject one or all bids.

FRED EVERBACK,
City Clerk.

Lawn Party.

Frank Marquette gave a very pleasant lawn party Wednesday evening in honor of his sister, Miss Hattie, who has just returned from a month's visit with friends at Jeffersonville and New Albany. The lawn was beautifully decorated with Japanese lanterns. Various games were played and delicious refreshments served in abundance. Those present were Misses Lulla and Pearl Cordes, Carrie, Estella, Ruth and Lenore Pfaffenberger, Bessie and Hazel Collins, Laura Hackman, Anna Kasperlain, Ivy Passwater, Mary Vornholt, Ella Lee, Flo and Carrie Beldon, Clara Moening and Grace Brown; Messrs. John Russell, Henry Topie, Erbin Hoffmeir, Fred and Alfred Pfaffenberger, John and Frank Marquette and Sanford Stunkle, besides a number of older persons who chaperoned and added to the merrymaking.

Traction Talk.

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, Elliott Fowler discusses the traction business with reference to Indiana and Ohio. The article is illustrated with views of the terminal station at Indianapolis, the freight yards and freight sheds. Mr. Fowler recently made a trip from Chicago to New York by trolley for the Chicago Tribune and what he did not cover in the stories he wrote for that paper he handles in the Post story. Among other things he states that Indianapolis is the greatest traction center in the universe. The name Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern Traction Company looms up prominently in one of the pictures.

BOYHOOD'S DREAMS REALIZED.

Tropical Birds and Flowers the One Luxury of This Wealthy Man.

Dreaming when a poor boy, working for a mere pittance, of a large estate where flowers would grow in profusion and numberless species of the feathered kingdom would flit from tree to tree, Seth Borden, of Fall River, now a rich man, has come to realize his heart's desire, for to-day this captain of industry possesses a flower garden said to be one of the finest in this country and a private aviary which is the most extensive in the east, says the Boston Post.

The birds and flowers came from all parts of the world, for in his love for them Mr. Borden has spared no effort and no expense.

Only a few days ago seventy-four of the most valuable English songbirds arrived in Boston consigned to Mr. Borden's estate. They occupied a saloon stateroom and were paid the utmost care and attention.

In a short time they will join their voices with the other numerous occupants of Mr. Borden's aviary, where awaiting the newcomers are already over 400 German and English canaries and many other songsters of the air.

It was in his boyhood years that Mr. Borden first conceived the plan which has cost him many thousands of dollars to bring into life.

Mr. Borden's estate is famed throughout the land. Artists flock there to seek inspiration, naturalists come to study birds and flowers, gardeners haunt the grounds for practical hints to be applied in laying out other estates, all come there to admire and to enjoy the picturesqueness and the beauty of the gardens and all join in praising the man who made it possible.

Everybody in Fall River knows the way to Mr. Borden's estate. Any child can direct a stranger to it and long before it is reached the merry songs of the birds announce its proximity.

Situated in the center of the residential sections, it presents a magnificent view. Acres upon acres of valuable land have been utilized for the aviary, the hothouses, the lawns and the park.

Flying in the open and confined in 800 small cages are over 500 birds of many varieties. There are Japanese robins, partridges, quail, native robins, European blackbirds, stone thrushes, catbirds, goldfinches, bullfinches, English linnets and song thrushes, 250 pigeons of twenty kinds strut over the ground, while beautifully plumed wild wood duck swim about the artificial pond on the big lawn.

There is hardly a flower in the world that is not represented in Mr. Borden's hothouses. Over 10,000 orchids of the 150 varieties are found in the orchid house. In another structure a wealth of chrysanthemums is to be seen. An immense hothouse is filled with Hamburg and Foster seedling grapes already fast ripening and in a few weeks the fruit of the fig trees will be ready for the table.

RICH HEIR WEDS POOR GIRL.

Stanley B. Puffer of Soda Fountain Family Amazes Boston Society.

Young Stanley B. Puffer, of Medford, one of the prospective heirs to the "soda-fountain millions," caused a great hubbub in society when it became known he had married the other day in Providence, says the Boston correspondent of the New York Press. The news was bad enough in itself to many society girls who had dreamed of marrying into the Puffer wealth, but the blow was made heavier to those aspirants when they heard the bride was not of the social elite; in fact, that she was poor; yes, dreadful as it may seem, that Stanley Puffer had married the daughter of a mill hand!

She had enough names, however, to seem as aristocratic as any Saltonstall Everett Cabot Pickney that ever blossomed on beans. She was Amelia Madeline Elizabeth De Marsh. Miss De Marsh's home was in Lebanon, N. H., but she was staying in Chelsea until the house where she lived was burned in the big blaze of April 12.

Puffer and Miss De Marsh met at a football game between the Tufts and Dartmouth freshmen teams in Haverford, N. H., in the fall of 1907, when Puffer was a Tufts fresher. Miss De Marsh was working in Lebanon, N. H., when the prospectively wealthy Tufts collegian was introduced to her. He liked her much. He had reason, for Miss De Marsh was undeniably pretty. He courted her assiduously, though secretly, and finally induced her to go to a clergyman.

The marriage did not become known in Boston or Medford until a few days after and on account of the scant information given out by Luther Puffer, father of Stanley, there is an air of mystery about the case. The father denied there was anything of a sensational nature about the wedding and said he knew that Stanley was planning to wed.

Mrs. Puffer, Stanley's mother, is quoted as having admitted earlier in the day that she did not know her son was married until a reporter informed her. She thought the wedding was to take place in the summer. Mrs. Puffer said Stanley and his fiancée had been at luncheon in the Puffer home.

Puffer, Sr., affirmed that the family had no objection to the marriage. In fact, he praised his son's bride as "a very fine young woman." But when he was asked what the name of his daughter-in-law's father was he replied he did not know. That statement may have been due, however, to Puffer's reluctance to talk about the marriage. He said his son was 20 years old and his new daughter-in-law was one year older. Puffer, Sr., has made millions as a manufacturer of soda-water fountains.

Of Youth and Age.

Young men are fitter to invent than to judge, fitter for execution than for counsel, and fitter for new projects than for settled business; for the experience of age, in things that fall within the compass of it, directeth them; but in new things abuseth them. The errors of young men are the ruin of business; but the errors of aged men amount to but this, that more might have been done, or sooner.

Young men, in the conduct and management of actions, embrace more than they can hold, stir more than they can quiet; fly to the end without consideration of the means and degrees; pursue some few principles which they have chanced upon absurdly; care not to innovate, which draws unknown inconveniences; use extreme remedies at first; and, that which doubleth all errors, will not acknowledge or retract them, like an unready horse, that will neither stop nor run. Men of age oblige too much, consult too long, adventure too little, repent too soon, and seldom drive business home to the full period, but content themselves with a mediocrity of success. Certainly it is good to compound employments of both; for that will be good for the present, because the virtues of either age may correct the defects of both; and good for succession, that young men may be learners, while men in age are actors; and, lastly, good for extreme accidents, because authority followeth old men, and favor and popularity, youth; but for the moral part, perhaps, youth will have the preeminence, as age hath for the politic.—Francis Bacon.

Effect of Light on Vegetable Life.

Camille Flammarion, the great French scientist, has just published the results of the remarkable experiments he has been conducting for the last two years to discover the effect of various lights on the growth of vegetation. He has a number of plants which were subjected to red, green, blue and white light, the conditions otherwise being similar. The results were astonishing. Under the effects of the red light certain vegetables, such as lettuce, grew fifteen times as fast as under the blue light. On the other hand, blue light has remarkable preservative powers. An oak tree, planted two years ago, kept its first leaves, which now are as fresh and vigorous as when they first appeared. In the same way ripe fruit can be kept fresh under a blue screen for twenty days without decay and a strawberry plant can be retarded from a similar period and then allowed to fructify. The experiments are expected to have a wide application for market gardening.

Had a Treat For His Wife.

Dr. George Harvey, a local veterinary physician, was called to a stable not long ago to minister to a horse that was down with colic. It was a serious case, and the doctor saw that the only way to save the horse would be to insert a tube in its side and allow the gas on its stomach to escape. Just because he thought it would startle the owner of the horse Harvey struck a match and lighted the gas at the end of the tube. The man didn't say much at the time, but he was properly impressed. He had never heard of using a horse for an illuminating plant. The next day when Dr. Harvey came around to see how the horse was getting along—it was all over the colic then—the owner tapped him on the shoulder.

"My wife was away yesterday," he said, "but she's home now. Just light up the horse again, will you? I want her to see it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

He Had Not Forgotten.

Artist William M. Chase told a story of the eccentric Jimmy Whistler. It was at a dinner party after all the guests had been seated, when Chase gently drew Whistler's attention to the fact that he had forgotten his tie. "Forgotten?" shrieked Whistler. "Nothing of the kind. Why should I spoil the effect of a good linen collar, with excellent lines, by sticking on a foolish little piece of flimsy lawn?"

And the dinner proceeded.

A man is best known by what he does when he thinks nobody is looking at him.

There was more dancing over the golden calf than over the two tables of stone.

He who looks up may miss the glitter of earth, but he will catch the glory of heaven.

Death is the launching of the ship from its stocks of clay to its own element, the sea of Eternity.

We sigh for the martyr's testings and neglect the petty persecution which God permits as preparation for them.

STRANGE HOTEL MEETING.

Two Traveling Salesmen Who Are Almost Doubles Come Together.

When A. H. Miller, a traveling salesman of St. Louis, went to the Savoy hotel to take a room the other night he discovered his name was already upon the register, says the Kansas City Times.

"Look here," he said to the clerk, "the last man who registered here was named A. H. Miller, too. I'll bet that's the scamp who has been getting my mail all over the country."

Another man was standing at the counter with a bunch of letters in his hands.

"My name is A. H. Miller, all right," said the second man, "and I sometimes get mail, but I'm not a scamp."

Then the two men laughed and shook hands.

"By the way," remarked Miller of St. Louis, "what's your first name?"

"Al," said the other.

"Why, my first name is Al. Don't suppose your middle name is—"

"Henry," the other man said, laughingly.

"Fine," said Miller of St. Louis. "We're counterparts. Are you from St. Louis, Mr. Miller?"

"No, Mr. Miller. I travel out of New York."

Thereupon the two travelers began to compare other personalities and found that they both were wearing Shriners' pins of the same size. Then they shook hands again. Both also wore eyeglasses.

After a chat, Mr. Miller of New York said he was going to his room. Mr. Miller of St. Louis also went to the elevator.

"Don't suppose we have been assigned the same bunk," said the New York man, as the car stopped at the fourth floor and they both stepped out. "I'm in 408."

"I'm in 416," the St. Louis man said.

"Good night, Mr. Miller."

"Good night, Mr. Miller."

But the travelers could not trace a relationship.

The Good Old Days.

The richest man in King Charles II.'s England could not get so good a dinner as tens of thousands will sit down to to-day. Cattle were of a far poorer breed, vegetables were few and bad, and the commonest conveniences of the table were unknown. Fish knives, for instance, are hardly considered an extravagant luxury, but Mr. Gladstone could remember when they were not to be found on any table.—London Telegraph.

Still Had Hopes.

"Say," queried the Wise Guy, "don't you ever get discouraged in trying to get something for nothing?"

"Naw," replied the granger, who had just invested in his twenty-third gold brick. "I've noticed th' other feller allers gits his that way, an' mebbey in th' course uv time I'll be th' other fellow."

A Criterion.

"What is a synonym?" asked a teacher.

"Please, sir," said the lad, "it's a word you can use in place of another if you don't know how to spell the other one."—School Board Journal.

A woman isn't necessarily in love with a man because she is jealous of him.

YOUNG FOLKS

Butterflies.

The study of the ways of butterflies will prove a delightful pastime to the boy or girl who knows only how to capture the pretty creatures in a net, to imprison and then to kill them. On some golden afternoon, altogether too beautiful to be wasted indoors, give yourselves up entirely to the butterflies. Follow and watch without startling them, and even in so short a time you will learn enough to make you wonder that any one can presume to call them aimless in their cheerful, busy little lives.

The first butterflies that make their appearance in the spring are the various dusky-wings, brown and black, which blend perfectly with the hues of the moist bare twigs and branches. Then come the tiny blue butterflies, heralds of the first violets; to be followed later by the gay swallow-tails, which are every color of the rainbow; the pure white butterflies of mid-June; the active little tawny and black skippers; the coppers and the brilliant angle-wings, which romp in the sunshine on the hottest days.

Butterflies have a dainty way of alighting for rest. A moth will come to a sudden stop and settle immediately, but a butterfly usually keeps its wings more or less open while it sways to and fro on some flower. If it be feeding, however, it will close its wings tightly, back to back, and if it be asleep, the wings will be packed away into the smallest possible compass. The Hesperini family with the fore wings down between the hind wings, so that only the hind wings may be seen.

Different butterflies manage their antennae differently. Some keep them widespread, others tuck them between the wings, and others again bring them together beside the front edge of the wings. This latter action means that the butterfly is sound asleep and perfectly comfortable.

The first morning thought of a butterfly is to search for honey. It probes every flower it meets, and often works hard for breakfast. The tiger swallow-tails have a passion for lilac blossoms; they are capable of gorging themselves to helplessness through their greed for the sweets. If you will notice the road side pools left by a summer shower you may see flocks of yellow butterflies eagerly drinking, and a pretty sight it is!

The species of butterfly known as the Vanessa are all wonderfully friendly and playful. Dr. Abbott tells of the red admiral alighting on his knee one day as he was writing, and, although it occasionally flew off to the bushes near by, it returned from time to time and was his companion for a great part of the day.

Would you not rather win the confidence of so graceful and exquisite an insect and thereby study its pretty ways than wantonly to imprison it? Follow the butterflies into the woods and fields, and you will see how they protect themselves by mimicry, how they make sounds by the motions of their wings, how many of them have all the variety of flight of the birds, and how most of them are clever botanists, making the best sort of teachers for your summer holidays.—Chicago Daily News.

Miniature Marvels.

Almost any commonplace object magnified under a good lens will reveal astonishing and unexpected form, structure and life. For instance—

Insects of various kinds may be seen in the cavities of a grain of sand.

Mold is a forest of beautiful trees, with branches, leaves and fruit.

Butterflies are fully feathered.

Hairs are tubes filled with pith and ornamented on the outside with scales. The surface of the human body is covered with scales like a fish. A single grain of sand would cover 150 of these scales, and yet a scale covers about 600 pores. Through these narrow openings the perspiration forces itself like water through a sieve.

Each drop of stagnant water contains a world of creatures swimming with as much freedom as whales in the sea.—Circle.

A Boy and a Ham.

In Idaho a boy named Willis Davis was sent last winter to a store seven miles from home to buy a smoked ham. He went on horseback and reached the store all right, but he had only started on his return when it began to snow. When he had completed half the journey the horse fell into a ravine and was badly injured, and, as he could not make his way on foot and feared to freeze to death, the lad dug his way into a snow bank.

As the snow continued to fall for the next two days Willie was buried under six feet of it and was kept snug and warm. The only thing he had to eat was the ham, and he chewed away at that until he now declares that he never wants to see another if he lives to be a hundred years old. He was dug out on the fourth day and was glad enough to get a change of diet.

Holidays.

The little folks of China Land have holidays so strange and grand. When comes the Feast of Lanterns, all The people walk about and call With gorgeous lanterns, shining bright— It must be such a pretty sight! The Feast of Dragon Boats they hold Beside the water; young and old Come out to see the dragon boats— Such odd and curious-looking floats—

Race for a prize. Another date

For celebrating is the fete Called Feast-Day of the Moon, on which Folks everywhere, both poor and rich, Eat little round cakes, colored red. How queer! I'm glad we have, instead, Our good old days of Christmas cheer, Thanksgiving, Easter and New Year, The Fourth, and all the fun they bring. I wouldn't change for anything! —Youths Companion.

MUST PROVE SHE IS ALIVE.

Odd Predicament of Young Woman Who Wants to Marry in Germany.

It is not often that Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the State board of health, is requested to aid officially in love affairs and matrimonial plans, but just now two young lovers, one on the other side of the Atlantic, are waiting anxiously for word from the health board's secretary, says the Indianapolis News.

Miss Jennie Burner, of German descent, whose home is at Anderson, is betrothed to a young man in the fatherland, but before she can wed Miss Burner must prove that she is alive. As far as the records of Indiana are concerned, Miss Burner never was born, and it is impossible in Germany for one to wed who was never officially born.

Miss Burner's friends have written to her telling her that when she comes to Germany to wed she must bring a legal transcript of her birth record. The young woman wishes to go to Germany soon, so she has appealed to Dr. E. M. Conrad, the health officer of Madison county, to aid her in straightening out the record of her birth. Dr. Conrad in turn has appealed to Dr. Hurty, and Dr. Hurty is sorely perplexed.

"Now, here's a young woman wishes to get married," said Dr. Hurty, as he scattered papers topsy-turvy over his desk and in other ways showed that he was severely agitated. "But how's she going to get married when she can't prove that she is alive? I have no record of her birth here. She was born in 1878 and that was before this department began keeping birth records. You see, the laws of Germany are strict. For a long time they have known of the importance of keeping birth records. She may be able to get an affidavit as to her birth. The laws of Germany may admit that, but I am not sure."

Dr. Hurty says the case of the German girl is only one of the many illustrations of the importance of keeping accurate birth and death records.

A Bride with Some Good Points.

Some years ago in an agricultural district in England there lived a farmer who wanted to sell one of his cows. There was not at that time a weekly paper in which he could advertise, so he resolved to follow a local custom and ask the vicar of the parish when giving out his notices at church to advertise the cow.

"Yes, farmer," said the vicar, "I should be willing to oblige you, but you don't attend my church."

Presently, however, they struck a bargain that the vicar should advertise the cow, and the man in return promised to go to church. Now, unfortunately the man was deaf, and on the Sunday following when the vicar gave out the banns of marriage between Joseph So-and-So, bachelor, and Sarah So-and-So, spinster, the farmer took it for granted that the vicar was giving out particulars of his cow and shouted out:

"You might as well say while you are about it that she is a most gentle creature and entirely free from vice."—Stray Stories.

A Formidable Army.

The battle was going against him. The commander in chief, himself ruler of the South American republic, sent an aid to the rear, ordering General Blanco to bring up his regiment at once. Ten minutes passed, but it didn't come. Twenty, thirty, an hour—still no regiment. The aid came tearing back hatless, breathless. "My regiment! My regiment! Where is it? Where is it?" shrieked the commander. "General," answered the excited aid, "Blanco started it all right, but there are a couple of drunken Americans down the road and they won't let it go by."—Argonaut.

Somehow the average man never feels called upon to repent until after he has been caught with the goods.

ARTISTIC TASTE.

In This the French Are First and the Irish Come Next.

Artistic taste is due to temperament, and where this exists the simplest materials lend themselves to artistic combinations and beautiful effects.

The French excel in dainty, graceful designs because of their volatile, mirth-loving temperaments. The Germans can never reach these heights because their temperaments are just the reverse, while it has been proved in several workrooms that, next to the French, the Irish temperament is the most artistic.

The more artistic the general training of a person the more ready are they to appreciate and profit by the fine productions of others; hence we are glad to see and grateful for the privilege of studying the "models" brought from Paris each season by the enterprising importers.

Twenty-five years ago in Paris and London the houses that catered to America and the colonies put aside for their trade any designs that were too extreme or "screaming" for the fastidious home buyers, says the Millinery Trade Review. But times have changed, and the American woman is now considered the best dressed in the world, and the leaders of American society are the women who dictate quite as much as the elite of France.

DROPPED COFFEE.

Doctor Gains 20 Pounds on Postum.

A physician of Wash., D. C., says of his coffee experience: "For years I suffered with periodical headaches which grew more frequent until they became almost constant. So severe were they that sometimes I was almost frantic. I was sallow, constipated, irritable, sleepless; my memory was poor, I trembled and my thoughts were often confused."

"My wife, in her wisdom, believed coffee was responsible for these ills and urged me to drop it. I tried many times to do so, but was its slave."

"Finally Wife bought a package of Postum and persuaded me to try it, but she made it same as ordinary coffee and I was disgusted with the taste. (I make this emphatic because I fear many others have had the same experience.) She was distressed at her failure and we carefully read the directions, made it right, boiled it full 15 minutes after boiling commenced, and with good cream and sugar, I liked it—it invigorated and seemed to nourish me."

"That was about a year ago. Now I have no headaches, am not sallow, sleeplessness and irritability are gone, my brain clear and my hand steady. I have gained 20 lbs. and feel I am a new man."

"I do not hesitate to give Postum due credit. Of course dropping coffee was the main thing, but I had dropped it before, using chocolate, cocoa and other things to no purpose."

"Postum not only seemed to act as an invigorant, but as an article of nourishment, giving me the needed phosphates and albumens. This is no imaginary tale. It can be substantiated by my wife and her sister, who both changed to Postum and are hearty women of about 70."

"I write this for the information and encouragement of others, and with a feeling of gratitude to the inventor of Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

WHOLLY CURED IN 8 MONTHS BY CUTICURA

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man fifty-five years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. I was truly in a frightful condition. At last my blood was so bad that I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery. I thought they would take the skin off my whole body, but I kept on scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. Mr. Nelson R. Burnett recommended the use of Cuticura Remedies, telling me he was confident they would benefit me, in time, cure me. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. I cordially recommend Cuticura Remedies to all who are afflicted the same as I was, believing that, if they will use them according to directions, they will find them all they are represented to be. Any one doubting the truth of the above can write to Mr. Burnett, who will cheerfully vouch for my statements."

"Hale Bordwell, R. F. D. 3, Cedar Corners, Tipton, Ia., Aug. 17, 1907."

"I cheerfully endorse the above testimonial. It is the truth. I know Mr. Bordwell and know the condition he was in. He never tires of praising the Cuticura Remedies."

Often The Kidneys Are

Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood. It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y. on every bottle.

STATE FAIR BARN

New Structure to Cost $40000 Is Building at Indianapolis This Summer.

WILL HOUSE SHOW HORSES

Larger Than Livestock Pavilion and Has Modern Appointments for Horses and Visitors—Rebuilding Era Has Begun—New Cement Walks and Other Improvements.

The State Board of Agriculture is this summer building on the Indiana State Fair grounds a new barn for horses, which is to cost $40,000, the board meeting the cost of the structure. The contract provides for its completion by September 1, and it will be used for the first time during the week of the State Fair, which opens September 7. It is said to be the only show barn in the United States which is so arranged that all of the horses in the stalls may be seen by a visitor.

The new barn is east of the livestock pavilion which was erected last year and is eighty feet away from it. It occupies ground on which stood several long sheds for show horses, these smaller barns having been taken to the east side of the grounds to shelter horses that are in training on the tracks. The barn that is building is 328 feet long and 204 feet wide, or 88 feet longer and four feet wider than the livestock pavilion. It will have capacity for 394 horses in stalls that are 5 1/2 by 10 feet. Between the stalls will be aisles over 22 feet in width, so that large crowds of visitors may move with ease through the structure and see the blooded animals. Behind each stall will be a chain to protect visitors from the heels of the horses.

The building has been designed for the comfort of the horses, for the convenience of the men who take care of them, and at the same time enable visitors to see the livestock at any time. One of the rules of the Fair is that all livestock must at all times be in condition to be seen by visitors, and in the new barn it is thought that the rule will be more closely followed than ever. While it is to be a very large, one-story structure, the roof will be high, and the building will contain roomy lofts for feed, bunks for hostlers, harness rooms and offices for the managers of the horse department. The roof is to be of saw-tooth pattern, and special attention will be given to ventilation and light will be brought in from the north. The roof proper will be of tile.

In the barn will be housed all of the horses of the Fair except the trotters and pacers. In other years the show horses have been sheltered in many barns which had no conveniences for horses, caretakers or visitors. A twenty-foot cement walk will connect the horse barn with the livestock pavilion and should the weather be rainy, this walk will be covered with a canvas awning for the protection of the horses' coats, that they may reach the pavilion in the best condition.

The show horse department of the Fair years ago began to more than fill the small barns allotted it, and when the Fair's horse shows began to grow in public favor, it was found that a large structure that would permit the exhibition of horses while in their stalls was a necessity. French and American Percherons, Clydesdales, Shires, Belgians, draft and grade draft horses, and in the coach classes, hackneys and German coach horses in large numbers are shown at the Fair every autumn. All of the light harness animals, saddlers, high steppers, jumpers, ponies and mules will all have quarters in the new barn, and this department of the fair, including the contents of the arena, will be under the direction of David Wallace, member of the State Board from Indianapolis.

The livestock pavilion and the horse barn mark the beginning of a rebuilding of the Indiana Fair on far more extensive lines than have been followed. These two structures represent an expenditure of about $150,000. The two buildings have been so located that a picturesque arrangement of other structures in later years can be made. The State Board has it in mind to erect a building for machinery which will cover about five acres and in time hopes to put up a large and pretentious building for the women of Indiana.

What is to develop into an extensive paving era has begun on the Fair grounds this summer. A cement walk 12 feet wide is being put down from the grandstand on the race-course to the Art building, the walk passing the doors of the Administration building.

The mile and half-mile tracks have been much improved, both having been resoled and ditched along the inside and outside edges, which enables the tracks to dry quickly after a rain. A large quantity of earth has been removed from the infield of the mile track, so that a spectator watching the races from the grandstand may see a horse's ankles all the way around the course.

In the next few years the State Board expects to put up a large and pretentious woman's building and a machinery pavilion of brick and steel, the pavilion to cover several acres, and to make many other improvements.

TAMPICO.

The showers that fell Friday evening and Sunday morning refreshed every thing.

Rev. Crabb filled his appointment last Saturday evening and Sunday.

George Cooley was knocked senseless, going home from church last Saturday evening by a rig passing swiftly by. He was carried in the home of A. Reynolds and it was found that there were no serious injuries. Mr. Cooley is able to be out again.

Will Applegate had his ankle dislocated last Saturday.

Mr. Bewie's little granddaughter had her arm broken by falling out of a little wagon.

Messrs Willie and Oliver Kreinhagen and Miss Jeannette Kreinhagen of Cincinnati, are visiting relatives here this week.

J. V. Sturgeon and family visited at Louisville last week.

Rev. Arvin and family returned from an extended visit in Kentucky last Monday.

Misses Pearl Rucker and May Robinson are visiting at Seymour this week.

Mrs. Elmer Fleenor and little daughter have been seriously ill the past week.

George Rodert and lady friend visited Wm. Schepman near Seymour last Monday.

Henry Kreinhagen, of Cincinnati, visited at John Daneke's last Sunday.

The farmers are breaking their wheat ground.

Some of the teachers took the teacher's examination for license last Saturday.

Dont Wait For the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness. Profit by Seymour People's Experience.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headache, and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. Its an error to neglect these ills. The attack may pass off for a short time but return with greater intensity. If they are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swelling below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles or any part of the body, dont delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidneys Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Seymour prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

RETREAT.

Mrs. Henry Peters and children, of Louisville, visited relatives here last week.

Mr. Frank Baughman left Saturday for Forest, Illinois, where he has work.

Mr. George Perry and family, of Kentucky, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hall a few days last week.

Mr. Offutt, of Uniontown, was a business visitor here Monday.

Mrs. Grace Graham, of Alto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rose, at this place.

Thurman Perry, of Austin, spent Sunday at Will Hall's.

Mr. Frank Baughman, of Paris Crossing, spent a few days last week with his brother, Jake Baughman, here.

One of Everett Burk's horses died Monday.

A girl from Henryville, who was up here Sunday evening, was struck by a trolley car at the station, she was standing too close to the track and the car struck her on the arm bruising it considerably and throwing her back in the station. No bones were broken.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitts & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity may be benefited. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by all Druggists.

PLEASANT VIEW.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rocky, of Helt Mill, visited his father Tuesday.

BOILER MAKERS AGAIN OUT

Obeys Instructions from Grand Officers and Quit Work.

Mattoon, Ill., July 30.—Acting under an ultimatum received from the grand officers of the order, the boiler makers in the Mattoon Big Four railway shops have again struck. The second walk-out comes as no surprise. The second discontinuance of work by the boiler makers here is practically a continuance of the first recess. The return to work was made a few days ago without permission of the grand officers of the Boiler Makers' Union, and, under penalty of losing the charter of its local, the Mattoon employes again struck.

An Investigation in Progress. Cincinnati, July 30.—It has become known publicly that the steamer Island Queen, which Tuesday night conveyed Judge Taft and a distinguished party, including the notification committee, up the Ohio river, was fired upon by an unknown man on a shanty boat moored on the Ohio side of the river. Several shots from the spent charge hit, but did not seriously injure Mrs. Charles B. Russell of this city, who was standing with her husband near the rail on the deck directly below where Mr. Taft was at the time standing. An investigation of the affair is being made by the steamboat company.

Strike Vein of Coal.

Carmi, Ill., July 30.—A five-foot vein of coal was struck in the oil well now being drilled near this city. The depth of the vein, as shown by the drill gauge, is a fraction over five feet, and the quality is fine. The vein was struck at a depth of 903 feet.

Piles! Piles! Piles!

Dr. Williams Indian Pile ointment will cure Blind, Bleeding, Ulcerated and Itching Piles. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching at once, acts as a poultice, gives instant relief. FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1908.

VICE PRESIDENT and Mrs. Chas. W. Fairbanks have gone to their summer cottage at Mackinac Island where they will spend several weeks.

TAMMANY will select the Democratic candidate for governor of New York this year and the Republicans of the state will renominate Hughes, with the approval of independent voters. Tammany's prospect of capturing New York in 1908 is poor.

A COUNTY commissioner is on trial at Indianapolis charged with grafting. In one contract made for the county he is said to have profited to the extent of $1000. Whether he is guilty or not the REPUBLICAN does not presume to know, but if he is guilty as charged he should suffer the consequences. The grafter must go.

MR. HEARST, or his literary adviser, inserted a truth as well as a good specimen of prose in the temporary chairman's speech in the following passage: "No prudent citizen will support a combination to which Taggart supplies a candidate, and Parker a platform; for which Ryan will pay the freight and the people will pay the penalty." Mr. Bryan knows now what it is to seek a fusion and find the air full of projectiles.

THE men and woman of every community believe in and advocate trading at home but not all of them practice it to the full extent. Suppose all follow the example of some, going to the big cities to do their trading. What would be the result on the business and property interests of their home city? Observe the store news columns in the REPUBLICAN today and you will understand that Seymour merchants are prepared to meet your demands.

BRYAN is the same man in principle and policy as of old. No more can he change his views and feelings than can the leopard change its spots. He may suppress expressions and modify his views on certain questions for political effect but deep down in his soul is nursed a most dangerous spirit. It is the spirit of unrest and discontent, which he so strenuously inculcates in the minds of the people. At no time and on no occasion does he lose an opportunity to appeal to class hatreds. If he speaks to the teachers, the miners or the farmers he compares their earnings with those of the more fortunate and rich. He appeals to their envy, hatred and jealousy. Such tactics have always been followed by the demagogue at all times and in all lands. When the democratic party gets into power he promises a re-adjustment of conditions. He will by presidential edict have the teacher's salary equal that of the captain of industry and wages of the miner equal to that of the president of a railroad. This is pure demagoguery and leads to socialism and anarchism. While preaching this dangerous doctrine of discontent Mr. Bryan goes about the country charging $500 a talk for chautauquas and other like gatherings. Just the other day he charged $1000 for talking into phonographs that will do service in his own campaign. Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel!

Major Long came up from Brownstown this morning to see his brother Paris Long, who was injured on the B. & O. S. W. near Cincinnati Thursday. He returned home on the next train and may be back here again this afternoon and remain till Nov. 3 tonight.

DUMP MYSTERY GROWS DEEPER

Two Men Now Known to Be Implicated In Horror.

BURNED BODY IN MATTRESS

Driving to Dumps in Covered Wagon, They Saturated Gruesome Load With Oil and Then Touched a Match to It—Inquest on Charred Body of Woman Revealed a Cut in Throat Evidently Made by a Hand Skilled in the Use of Surgical Instruments—New York's Latest Murder Mystery.

New York, July 31.—That at least two men were concerned in the murder of an unidentified woman whose half-charred and acid-seared body was found on the Green Point avenue dumping ground in Williamsburg, Brooklyn, has been established by the police. Philip O'Brien, a laborer, of Green Point, saw a covered wagon driven to the dump. Two men got out and lifted from the wagon what the witness supposed to be only an old mattress. He saw the men pile a heap of brush on the mattress, pour oil on it and then set fire to the bundle. Believing the mattress was being destroyed because it was disease-infected, the man avoided the spot. There can be no doubt but that the mattress was the one in which the body of the murdered woman was concealed.

This important development has given the police valuable aid, for it led to the discovery that the covered wagon was seen by several other persons and the police now have a minute description of the two men who were in it. They were foreigners. Another startling feature of the case was disclosed when Coroner's Physician Wuest made a second autopsy on the corpse. His first autopsy revealed a deep cut across the woman's throat. The second shows that this cut was made by a person who is an expert in surgery. The incision, says the coroner's physician, is such as is made in desperate cases of diphtheria, where it is necessary to pierce the windpipe to prevent strangulation. Whether this wound caused death or not, Dr. Wuest is unprepared to say. Besides the incision in the woman's throat, her skull was fractured.

Failure to establish the identity of the victim is the greatest obstacle the police have to overcome in solving the mystery. A general alarm has been sent out for Mrs. Muskovitch and her husband, who have disappeared. Detectives learned by a house-to-house canvass in Green Point that the couple are missing and there is a possibility that the murdered woman may be Mrs. Muskovitch. Muskovitch and his wife left Green Point last Monday, supposedly for Stamford, Conn., and Mrs. Muskovitch has not been seen since. Her husband returned to Green Point on Tuesday alone, it was said.

GOULD DROPS BACK

Harriman Gains Big Point in Great Railroad War.

New York, July 31.—After a continuous battle of five years to control the first transcontinental railroad, George J. Gould has been forced to admit defeat, and has surrendered to E. H. Harriman, his old-time enemy, and on Harriman's own peace terms. This latest deal, taken in connection with the Rockefeller extension of the St. Paul road to the coast, makes the Rockefeller interests practically the dictators of the Rocky mountain and Pacific Coast business.

In the office of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., at Pine and Williams streets, Gould executed the papers which, it is announced, will provide him with funds to meet the $8,000,000 Wheeling & Lake Erie notes maturing tomorrow, and will materially change his standing in the railroad world.

Whether it will mean the complete effacement of Gould as a railroad magnate is problematical; that it will remove him from the galaxy of first magnitude is not questioned.

This development is of far-reaching significance, in that it means the virtual abandonment of Gould's attempt to form a competitive transcontinental line, consisting of Western Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Missouri Pacific, Wabash, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal, and the Western Maryland system.

It probably means, according to at least to the interpretation placed on it in financial circles, that Harriman is to play an important part in Wheeling & Lake Erie, Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal and Western Maryland, while Mr. Gould will be able to maintain the independence of all of his systems west of St. Louis.

Pensacola Counting the Cost. Pensacola, Fla., July 31.—This city has quieted down somewhat after the excitement of Wednesday night. The fearful cost at which the negro Leander Shaw was secured and made to answer the penalty of outraged people, is greatly deplored and citizens are a unit in great sorrow over the results of the storming of the county jail. Mrs. Lillian Davis, Shaw's victim, is in a desperate condition and her life is despaired of.

It Was Not Murder.

Columbus, Ind., July 31.—John Underwood, who was charged with the murder of Mrs. Carrie Percifield, was discharged by Justice Stader after his preliminary hearing had been concluded. The coroner's verdict in this case showed that Mrs. Percifield had come to her death on the banks of White river after a debauch, in which she and Underwood figured. The woman was covered with blood when found, and an investigation showed that this was caused by a hemorrhage of the lungs.

CHIEF WITNESS FOR THE STATE

Straightforward Story of Alleged Graft Told In Court.

COMMISSIONER ON TRIAL

In the Hearing Against County Commissioner McGregor at Indianapolis Emmett Huggins, Former Clerk of the Board, Tells in Plain, Direct Manner His Recollection of How Alleged Deal With the Atlas Engine Works Was Carried Through and Admits His Own Crimes.

Indianapolis, July 31.—Emmett S. Huggins, in a plain, straightforward manner, and without the slightest hesitation, told on the witness stand in the criminal court his story, in which he said that County Commissioner John McGregor solicited and accepted a bribe from the Atlas Engine works for voting to award to that company a contract for new boilers in the county power-house. He told how the negotiations were conducted, how the sum of $3,800 was fixed as the bribe, who paid over the money to him, how and where it was paid and how he gave McGregor and Thomas E. Spafford, a former member of the board of county commissioners, their share of the spoils.

Huggins did not spare himself in relating his connection with the case. He admitted that he was the go-between and that the entire scheme was worked through him; that he set the figure at $3,800 and that he received and distributed the money. Confessing fifty forgeries, admitting that he had stolen $5,000 from the county while its employe by means of fraudulent warrants, and finally declaring it was he who had stolen and arranged for the destruction of certain county records to cover up his crimes, Huggins finished his testimony. Never flinching, never hesitating, Huggins admitted one after another of the crimes which counsel for McGregor charged against him.

TO AMEND CONSTITUTION

West Virginia Democrats Would Disfranchise Negroes.

Charleston, W. Va., July 31.—The Democrats of West Virginia in convention here nominated Louis Bennett of Lewis county, as governor, and the following state ticket: Secretary of state, Adam B. Littlepage, Kanawha county; state auditor, Oscar Jenkins, Wood county; superintendent of free schools, I. B. Bush, Summers county; treasurer, J. A. Miller of Ohio county.

While the negro disfranchisement plank adopted by the convention states that the giving of the electorate to the negro race was a mistake, it "favors amending the constitution so as to preserve the purity of the ballot from evils resulting from conferring such powers and privileges upon those who are unfitted to appreciate its importance." The plank adopted by the convention gives no indication how such disfranchisement may be effected.

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT BLOOD HUMORS

The skin is not simply an outer covering of the body, but through its thousands of pores and glands it performs the great and necessary work of regulating our temperatures, and also assists in disposing of the refuse and waste matters of the system by the constant evaporation that goes on through these little tubes. To perform these duties the tissues and fibres which connect and surround the pores and glands must be continually nourished by pure blood. When from any cause the circulation becomes infected with impurities and humors, it loses its strengthening powers and begins to disease and irritate the delicate tissues, and produces Eczema, Acne, Tetter, or some other itching, disfiguring skin trouble. S. S. S. cures skin diseases of every kind by going down into the circulation and neutralizing and removing the impurities and humors. It changes the quality of the blood from an acid, fiery fluid to a cooling, health-producing stream, which, instead of irritating and inflaming the skin, cures and nourishes it by its soothing, healthful qualities. Salves, washes, lotions, etc., may be used for any temporary comfort or cleanliness they afford, but skin diseases cannot be cured until S. S. S. has purified the blood. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice sent free.

Night Rider Threats.

Frankfort, Ky., July 31.—Governor Willson says the national guardsmen will encamp at any point which may please them inside the limits of the commonwealth, and that any attempt to interfere with the troopers will be construed as an act of hostility toward the commonwealth and properly repressed.

The foregoing is the substance of a letter written by the chief executive to Vice President Rawn of the Illinois Central, who had written Governor Willson asking him if the state national guard would encamp on Illinois Central property.

Vice President Rawn had received threatening letters stating that if the troops were permitted on the railroad property that trains would be derailed. These letters were sent to Governor Willson with an inquiry from the railroad. The threats will not deter the governor nor disrupt plans already made.

Governor Willson in his letter declared that no efforts at intimidation on the part of lawless inclined people of western Kentucky will be considered in the movement of troops or selection of camping grounds for soldiers in active service in that part of the state.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless aid to prepare the system for baby's coming, and render the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, back-ache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, ante-version or retro-version or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best and known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send of part will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

GROWING OLD.

▲ Little more tired at close of day;
▲ Little less anxious to have our way;
▲ Little less ready to scold and blame;
▲ Little more care for a brother's name;
And so we are nearing the journey's end
Where time and eternity meet and blend.

▲ Little less care for bonds and gold,
▲ Little more zest in the days of old,
▲ Broader view and a sinner's mind;
▲ And a little more love for all mankind;
And so we are faring a-down the way
That leads to the gates of a better day.

▲ Little more love for the friends of youth,
▲ Little less zeal for established truth,
▲ Little more charity in our views,
▲ Little less thirst for the daily news;
And so we are folding our tents away
And passing in silence at close of day.

▲ Little more leisure to sit and dream,
▲ Little more real the things unseen,
▲ Little nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long loved and dead;
And so we are going where all must go,
To the place the living may never know.

▲ Little more laughter, a few more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years;
The book is closed, and the prayers are said,
And we are a part of the countless dead.
Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say:
"I live because he has passed my way."
—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"You see, Mr. Third, I thought I had better come and see you myself, and save time. You have read the notes and papers which I sent you."

Sir James Alwyn, a big bronze faced man, in a rough shooting suit, looked at the vigilant anxiously; the famous detective nodded, and fingered the pieces on the chess board.

"The circumstances of the case are strange, and my own position is a bit peculiar," continued Sir James. "Here am I, a J. P. and all that, bound to try this man; all the evidence is dead against him. If he is sent to the assizes he'll hang as sure as eggs; and yet, though I'm not a betting man, I'd lay a thousand guineas to a penny piece the fellow is innocent."

"You had better run over the details of the story, Sir James," said the vigilant rather testily.

"Very good. Middletown moor is a bigish stretch of very dreary heathland, fifteen miles long by ten across, and affords fine cover for birds. My own estate joins the shoot erected by a Mr. Halifax. Three nights ago his head keeper was found murdered. He had been hit over the head from behind with a heavy bludgeon, and his skull smashed in; Marne was the poor chap's name, and he was one of the best men with the birds I have ever seen. Apparently he had been going his night rounds, met this gypsy poacher fellow, and been bowled over; he was found in a dying condition by the under keeper at 12:30. Help was summoned from Halifax house, but the man was dead before it arrived.

"Now, it can be proved that this gypsy, Pedres, was in the inn at Lamas, a small village at the far end of the moor, on the afternoon of the murder.

"Shortly after 6 the next morning, the alarm having then been given, he was arrested carrying some birds in a sack at Holyoak, another small village on the other side of the moor, fifteen miles from Lamas. A sort of track connects the two, and the keeper Marne was found not twenty yards from this track, near a spot known as Middlewell hole—a small house once an outlying farm, and now rented by an eccentric old gentleman named Cunningham.

"Pedres when arrested was in a disheveled condition—he was found sleeping hidden under the shelter of a peat stack. He had a big bludgeon with him; his cheek was badly cut, and had been bleeding recently, and there were bloodstains on his clothes. The birds had been killed within a few hours, and, moreover, his footprints, easily traceable in parts of the track by reason of the nails in the right sole forming a cross, have been found not a hundred yards away from the scene of the murder; possibly they could have been traced to the exact point where he left the track for the heather, but the rescue party and sightseers had obliterated the marks before they could be prevented. In addition, he confesses to have come along the track that night. You see, the case is as black as black can be, but I can not believe him guilty."

"This Mr. Cunningham, what of him?" Sir James laughed.

"He is quite out of the question. He is an eccentric old chap of over 70, a bookworm; he chose the place for its solitude. Thompson, the under keeper, who lives at Marne's house, half a mile away, looks after him; it has been an arrangement of some three years' standing. Thompson calls him at 6 in the morning, cooks him a bit of breakfast, and tidies up, coming back again at 6 in the evening, when he lights the lamp, puts a decanter of port and some bread on the table, and leaves him for the night, and the old man goes to bed at 12 sharp."

"The gypsy's version is that after drinking at the inn at Lamas, he lay low till half-past 9, and the village was quiet, then he started out with the deliberate intention of raiding the birds. He got seventeen in all, leaving the track at intervals, of course; it was while groping in a hollow, he explains, that he tripped in the heather and cut his cheek on a boulder.

"He declares, too, that he didn't reach Holyoak till after 3 in the morning, and that during the last half of the tramp, having collected his spoil, he walked at a good, brisk pace. That would mean—assuming his story true—that he could not have reached the scene of the murder before 2 in the morning; an hour and a half after the finding of the body.

"Of course, the obvious explanation is that he started much earlier, at 5 or 6 perhaps.

"I cross-examined him most carefully on these points, but nothing would move him. But I elicited beyond doubt that he was practically a stranger to the moor, and therefore dare not wander far from the track; and, also, the fact that he never even guessed at the existence of a house planted down in the middle of the moor.

"Now, guilty or innocent, that proves one thing for certain; he must have passed Middlewell hole after 12, for Mr. Cunningham's room looks right up the track toward Lamas, and the light in it would be bound to attract attention half a mile away in that direction, though visible from the Holyoak side. In which case his escape, if guilty, is a miracle, as he must have committed the crime within a minute or so of Thompson's arrival. Mr. Cunningham is a most punctual old man, and he is positive he did not put out the light before 12."

The vigilant looked up. "I should like to see this Mr. Cunningham, but—" he paused with a glance downward at his helpless lower limbs.

Sir James flushed a little. "I could—I—er—have a big motor here, you could be made quite comfortable. The case is remanded for a week, and we could go by easy stages; but I am afraid Mr. Cunningham is out of the question. He locked up the house, leaving everything just as it was after the murder; gave me the keys, and has gone off to stay with friends in Paris."

"I will come if you make room for my servant; he understands my needs. Yes, I will come, it may help, and country police are always bunglers."

II.

Three days later the vigilant was carried into a chair in the sitting room of Middlewell hole. Sir James having the keys, considered himself entitled to take the liberty; the big motor which had brought them, and in which they had visited the scene of the murder and part of the Lamas track, was panting and throbbing outside.

As Sir James had said, nothing had been touched since the eventful night—a half-filled decanter of port and the remains of a meal were still left on one end of the table; in the center was a big lamp with a deep shade; at the other end, close to the armchair, a pile of books.

The vigilant, resting in the chair, looked around keenly, his pale, colorless eyes noting every detail, even to the dust prints, and frowned.

"Sir James, I wish to see Thompson," he said presently.

The man was sent for—a fresh looking, well set-up fellow of five-and-twenty.

Marshall Third shot one quick glance at him.

"Do you fill this lamp when you light it—every evening, I mean?"

"I used to, sir; Mr. Cunningham was always very particular."

"Did you on the evening of the murder?"

"Yes, sir."

"You are positive?"

"Quite, sir. I had to wipe it, I remember, because it overflowed a little. I was in a hurry when I did it, and spilled some."

"How late were you? When did you light it?"

"May be ten minutes, sir. The lamp was lit and the table laid just on the quarter after 6."

"You haven't touched it since?"

"No, sir. Sir James, here, has the keys. I haven't been in the rooms. The morning after the murder I had no time to see to Mr. Cunningham. We were all out on the moors looking for tracks."

"Give it to me—the lamp, man; don't gape; Now that silver cup there."

The vigilant very carefully detached the oil receiver, unscrewed the cap and poured every drop of oil into the cup.

"Now fill it again—full, mind."

The man did as he was told. The glass oil receiver was full to the brim when he brought it back.

"What time do you make it, Sir James?"

Sir James Alwyn pulled out his watch.

"Exactly 11:10."

"Humph! I make it fourteen past—four minutes' difference. Light the lamp, Thompson. Sir James, you will have a tedious watch, but you will save your man's neck. You, Thompson, and my servant had better wait in this room. Let neither the cup nor the lamp be touched, and the window and door kept as they are—shut. With your permission I will drive around a little. I shall be back at 5:15."

At exactly twelve minutes past the hour the watchers of the lamp heard the car come up with a rush and a whirr.

The vigilant was helped to his chair, and sat down as the clock in the hall chimed the quarter.

"Turn out the lamp," he said sharply. And Thompson obeyed like a machine.

Third reached for the silver cup, leveled it carefully on the table, and with a knife made a small horizontal scratch just level with the surface of the liquid.

"You see that, Sir James, and you, Thompson. That mark is exactly the height of the oil left in the lamp. You swear to it on oath."

They assented.

"Throw the oil away, and drain the cup thoroughly. Good. Now pour out the remaining oil in the lamp, which, as you have timed for yourself, has been burning six hours."

They did so, and the liquid rose three full inches above the shimmering, roughened scratch.

Third shrugged his shoulders.

"You see," he said tersely. "Sir James, your man is safe. This oil is the residue after the lamp has been burning six hours. Mr. Cunningham has stated that he turned out his lamp at 12, in which case, on that occasion, it would also have been burning six hours—for we can prove that it was lighted a few moments after 6. Yet there is practically half a pint of oil left over and above the original amount."

"You can prove exactly how long that quantity will burn under like conditions, if you choose. Personally, I know from observation that it will burn for as nearly as possible an hour and three-quarters—an hour and fifty minutes, maybe. In other words, Mr. Cunningham fell asleep, book in hand, and instead of putting out his light at 12, as he thought, woke up after a nap of an hour and a half or so, read for a little, oblivious of the fact that he had dozed off, and turned out the light close on 2 o'clock; which means that your gypsy can not have passed here until at least an hour after the man's body had been found. Sir James, I should like to return at once, if you please. I have spent a pleasant time driving on the moor. Inside that envelope you will find something of interest. After I have gone you may open it."

The inclosed paper contained the words:

"When you hear a woman crying, look to the man she fancies most for the reason. I found Marne's daughter in tears."

A week later the vigilant smiled grimly over a telegram as he sat in his invalid chair.

"You were right—my man dismissed—youthful farm hand confessed to crime—in love with daughter—quarrel with father, and murdered him in fit of rage as opposed match—writing details.—Alwyn.—London Answers.

AN ERA OF SLANG.

A Boston Appeal for Moderation in Its Use.

If the slang of to-day is the correct speech of to-morrow, what language will our children speak a generation hence? Will it be the English of George Meredith or the English of George Ade? Shall we talk in the flowery hyperbole of the Bowers, with which our newspapers of to-day, and even our books, are filled, or must we be content with the speech that has satisfied many generations of our forefathers? As we saunter along in enjoyment of the invigorating spring air on a bright Sunday morning, whether we have been listening to the words of the preacher or merely taking our Sabbath pleasure in the open, shall we say to our children, "You kids hike along home," or shall we tell them, "Run along, and we'll follow." Of course, it will be needless to express ourselves in such grandiloquent phrase as "Children, journey home, and behave yourselves decorously," for the youth of to-day would be ill-mannered enough to laugh at us therefor, but there is a happy mean between the vulgar and the stilted, and correct and informal speech will fall upon childhood's ear like the words of an unintended sermon.

As a matter of fact, a little slang is an excellent thing, but in the present era of slang more than the smallest quantity is a great deal too much. The English language may fairly be said to be the most picturesque and most expressive in the world, and it does not need the verbiage of the stum, or even the catch-words and catch-phrases of the street, to add to its vigor and variety. As a rule, the use of slang is indicative more of paucity of thought and idea than of a susceptibility to the humorous and the graphic. If we tell our friend to "get onto his job," "to get onto himself," "to get busy," "to get a move on," or any one of a hundred other things, we certainly reveal our tendency to move with the tide of the hour, but at the same time we clearly show that we are more imitative than original. We speak slang frequently through sheer laziness. It was the last word in the mouth of a companion, and it becomes the next word in ours. It is echoed by the speaker, by the teacher, by the lecturer, by the writer, but with rare exceptions it never becomes any thing but slang. After all, it is only the best of slang that survives, but even then we need not excuse ourselves for becoming proficient in its use. We should think of the present as well as of the future. Why use slang when we can speak the speech of our heritage equally well? Why become the blind leaders of the blind?—Boston Transcript.

That Let Him Out.

"Gimme a bundle of assorted views of America," said the man who was about to sail for Europe. "A man ought to send postcards of his own country first."—Kansas City Journal.

Farmer—No fishing on these grounds. Didn't ye see that sign?

Fisherman—Well, who is fishing on the grounds? The water is good enough for me.—Field and Farm.

Another Monopoly.

Miss DeYoung—Stella tells me she has an engagement for every night next week.

Miss DePayne—I don't think that is right when there are so many girls that can't get engaged at all.

Pleasant for Him.

Him—I took Miss Willing for a drive last evening.

Her—Did you enjoy it?

Him—I certainly did. She knows how to drive, all right.

The Usual Case.

Meeker—My wife and I never quarrel. She does as she pleases and I do, too.

Bleeker—I see—as she pleases.

Meeker—Of course. I'm not looking for trouble.

All He Could Afford.

The young and lanky wayfarer stood before the cheese counter.

"Do you sell Swiss cheese?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir," replied the police clerk.

"And do you charge for the holes in the cheese?"

"Of course not."

The long and lanky wayfarer fumbled in his pockets and found them empty.

"What can I do for you?" asked the clerk.

"I'm broke, boss," replied the wayfarer, "I guess you better give me the holes in the cheese. They'll do to-day."

And He Won Her.

Mrs. Prim—I don't think I would care for you to call on my daughter again.

Suitor—Why not?

Mrs. Prim—Well, to begin with, you are too disrespectful. I heard you say that I used powder.

Suitor—Yes, baking powder, and you are the finest cook in the neighborhood.

A Winning Speech.

She was white with indignation.

"You shall never go down to that horrid club again, James Henry."

"But, Martha I—"

"Never mind. You heard what I said. You must remember when I bring my foot down on anything it bears weight."

"Nonsense!"

"Gunner? You mean to ridicule my assertion, James Henry Butler?"

"Oh, no, my dear. I merely wished to remark that a foot as small as the one you possess could not possibly bear weight."

There was a long pause.

"You really think so, James? Well, now, aren't you both clever and truthful? I believe I will let you go down to the club to-night if you'll promise to come home real early."

Paris Prices.

Gunner—Allow me to congratulate you, old man.

Guy—What on?

Gunner—Why, I hear that when your wife asks you for a fat and gown allowance she makes it go a long way.

Guy (gloomily)—Oh, she makes it go a long way, all right. She sends it to Paris and gets about a third of the value she got when she shopped in town.

Prosaic Call-Down.

Sandy Pikes—Never more will I claim to be a poet. I told dat lady in de wayside cottage I was going to recite me masterpiece "De Call of de Wood."

Gritty George—She gave me an ax and said she'd rather hear me recite "De Call of de Woodpile."

Didn't Get the Chance.

Summer boarder—Well, I said while I was out here I intended to go to bed with the chickens, but—

Couldn't Understand.

Farmer Hardapple—Ma, Molly is back from college.

Ma Hardapple—Well, tell her to go call the cows home.

Farmer Hardapple—What would be the use? Cows don't understand college slang.

It Would Seem So.

Gyer—I understand young Seers was married last week.

Myer—Yes; he married a clairvoyant.

Gyer—Indeed! Case of love at second sight, I suppose?

Nothing Else.

"Did you ever see a real Hindoo idol?" queried the interviewer.

"Did I ever see a Hindoo idol?" exclaimed the globe trotter. "Say, I never saw one at work."

What He Wanted.

"This dog," said the fancier, "is a perfect type of a setter."

"Well, perhaps he is," rejoined the prospective customer, "but what I want is a hunting dog, not a typesetter."

Accurate.

"How high is the thermometer?" asked the Philadelphia girl.

After a busy moment with a tape measure her Boston cousin replied: "Five feet and three inches from the floor, dear."

Amended.

"Mr. Hunter is married now," said the bride-to-be, preparing to send out her cards, "so we'll have to address his invitation to 'Mr. and Mrs. Hunter.'"

"Better not," her brother advised. "She's the boss, so you'd better address it to 'Mrs. and Mr. Huntress.'"—Philadelphia Press.

A Slight Jolt.

Young Boastem—It will cost me all of ten thousand a year to live.

Miss Castigone—Don't you think such a waste of money sinful?

Not the Same.

"It's a pity," remarked the thoughtful thinker, "that a man isn't like pie crust."

"Because why?" asked the dense person.

"Then," explained the t. t., "the shorter he is the richer he would be."

HER REAL OBJECT.

One of the many little humors of married life is illustrated in a story from the Chicago News. A man's wife had been to call on a friend, and from her had received the most glowing description of the husband of another friend. She came home full of the subject, and proceeded to enlarge upon the virtues of the matrimonial marvel.

"Ellen says he's just a model," she began.

"Fine!"

"She's certainly lucky—a great deal more than most women are. He doesn't belong to a single club, Ellen says. He did, but he gave them all up when he married. He said he was going to make his home his club."

"Now noble of him!" said the man.

AN HONEST DOCTOR ADVISED PE-RU-NA.

M. R. SYLVESTER E. SMITH, Room 218, Granite Block, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "Peruna is the best friend a sick man can have."

"A few months ago I came here in a wretched condition. Exposure and dampness had ruined my once robust health. I had catarrhal affections of the bronchial tubes, and for a time there was a doubt as to my recovery."

"My good honest old doctor advised me to take Peruna, which I did and in a short time my health began to improve very rapidly, the bronchial trouble gradually disappeared, and in three months my health was fully restored."

"Accept a grateful man's thanks for his restoration to perfect health."

Pe-ru-na for His Patients.

A. W. Perrin, M. D. S., 980 Halsey St., Brooklyn, N. Y., says:

"I am using your Peruna myself, and am recommending it to my patients in all cases of catarrh, and find it to be more than you represent. Peruna can be had now of all druggists in this section. At the time I began using it, it was unknown."

Our Own Minstrels.

Bones—Mistah Johnsing, kin yo' tel me de diffunce 'tween de diplymatic inte'co'se o' fust class powahs an' nine cases o' measles in a cullud family?

Interlocutor—No, George; that's the hardest one I ever heard. What is the difference between the diplomatic inter-course of first class powahs and nine cases of measles in a colored family?

Bones—De one am de serious affairs of state an' de uthah am a serious state of affairs.

Interlocutor—Ladies and gentlemen, the premier vocalist of the western hemisphere, Mr. Spitcher Reedrums, will now sing the beautiful ballad entitled "Darling, Take Your Arm Away; Mother Is Peeping Through the Keyhole."

BED-BOUND FOR MONTHS.

Hope Abandoned After Physicians' Consultation.

Mrs. Enos Shearer, Yew and Wash-ington streets, Centraalia, Wash., says:

"For years I was weak and run down, could not sleep, my limbs swelled and the secretions were troublesome; pains were intense. I was fast in bed for four months. Three doctors said there was no cure for me, and I was given up to die. Being urged, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon I was better and in a few weeks was about the house, well and strong again."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

No Stranger to That.

Mrs. Highmus—I suppose at some time in your life you struggled with the Nibe-kunzelien?

Mrs. Gaswell—O, yes; I had an awful siege of that in '93. I had to take all kinds of nasty medicines before I got it out of my system.

Truth and Quality

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accord-ingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objection-able substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading drug-gists.

Good Short Stories

A destitute author is said to have gone to Dumas pere and threatened to suffocate himself and his three children unless Dumas could let him have three hundred francs at once. Dumas searched his coffers thoroughly, but could find only two hundred francs. "But I must have three, or I and the little loves are lost." "Suppose you suffocate yourself and save the little loves," said Dumas.

Dressed in the latest and most ap-proved motor-cycling costume, with goggles all complete, the motor-cyclist in London gayly tooted-tooted his way by Regents Park toward the Zoo. Sudden-ly he slackened, dismounted, and said to a small, grubby urchin: "I say, my boy, am I right for the Zoo?" The boy gasped at so strange a sight, and thought it must be some new animal for the gardens. "You may be all right if they have a spare cage," he said, when he could find his tongue, "but you'd ha' stood a far better chance if you'd 'ad a tail!"

"It is a mistake," said Otto E. Schaar, the president of the New York Waiters' Club, "to think that an Eng-lishman always wants his beef ex-cessively rare. As a matter of fact, the English like their beef better done than we do. I once saw a waiter," he continued, "serve an English duke with a cut of very, very rare sirloin. The duke looked closely at the slice of bright red meat. Then he said: 'Waiter, just send for the butcher, will you?' 'The butcher, sir?' the waiter stammered. 'Yes,' said the duke. 'This beef doesn't seem to be quite dead yet.'"

Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader, tells the following story on him-self: "I was to address a public meeting and there was intense prej-udice against me, so the young man who had to introduce me thought he would try to disarm it. 'Debs is hated by some people,' he said, 'because he has been in strikes. This is not right. It is the law of nature to defend your-self. Why, even a dog will growl if you try to deprive him of the bone he is gnawing, a goat will butt if you get in his way, and you all know what a jackass will do if you monkey with him. Ladies and gentlemen, this is Debs, who will now address you.'"

They were walking under a very little umbrella, and she liked it well enough not to want a large spread of alpaca. He was modest and seemed to be nervous, and she finally remark-ed, very softly, and with a note of interrogation: "Charlie, I'll carry the umbrella, if you will let me?" "Oh, no! I can carry it." "Yes, Charlie; but, you see, your arm takes up so much room that one side of me is out in the wet." "I know, Fanny; but what will I do with my arm? Won't it be in the way all the same?" "I don't know, Charlie; Tom Clark al-ways knows what to do with his arm when he is under an umbrella with Mary Martin."

THE BEAUTY OF LAUGHTER.

The Man Who Indulges in It Is a Doctor Without a Diploma.

From the time of King Solomon downward, laughter has been the sub-ject of pretty general abuse. Even the laughers themselves sometimes vitu-perate the cachinations they indulge in, and many of them "laugh in such a sort, as if they mocked themselves, and scorned the spirit that could be moved to laugh at anything."

The general notion is that laughter is childish, and unworthy the gravity of adult life. Grown men, it is claimed, have more to do than to laugh, and the wiser sort of them leave such an un-seemly contortion of the muscles to babes and blockheads. Laughter is not babyish, or boyish, nor does it apper-tain to early life. But laughter does not include what is technically called "giggling," which proceeds more through a looseness of the structure than from any sensation of amusement. Many young persons are continually on the giggle till their muscles strengthen, and when a company of them are met to-gether, the affection aggravated by emu-lation acquires the loudness of laugh-ter, when it may be likened, in scrip-ture phrase, to the crackling of thorns. What is meant by laughter is a regular gaffaw; that explosion of high spirits, and the feeling of joyous excitement which is commonly written ha! ha! ha! This is altogether unknown in baby-hood; in boyhood it exists only in rud-iments; and it does not reach its full development till adolescence ripens into manhood.

The man that laughs is a doctor without a diploma. His face does more good in a sickroom than a bushel of powders or a gallon of bitter draughts. People are always glad to see him. Their hands instinctively go half way out to meet his grasp. He laughs you out of your faults, while you never dream of being offended with him; and you never know what a pleasant world you are living in until he points out the sunny streaks on its pathway. Laughter is language of merriment—the speech of humor—the eloquence of fun. Without it wit becomes cold and pulse-less, and social chat loses its attrac-tiveness and life. It infuses a spirit of cheerfulness into whatever circle of so-ciety it reaches. A good laughter is a welcome guest at every gathering, un-less it be a funeral, and even at such a gathering he is not to be excluded, because pathos and humor are so closely allied—the latter, it is said, secretes tears. Hood, the king of humorists, wrote the Bridge of Sighs, and the words of that poem sound like "the dropping of tears from the eaves of the eyelids." A pleasant wag who laughs at everything and with everybody can be a useful man in his neighborhood.

Since Adam, who, of course, inven-ted the laugh, 20 two men have laughed alike. The laugh is as distinct as the voice; perhaps more so, for the laugh of a full-bearded man is very different from that which he laughs when he has been clean-shaven by a barber. Women laugh differently from men, children from women, and there are writers who profess to detect national peculiarities in the laugh.

Great men have often fancied it a part of greatness to refrain from hilar-ity. Philip IV. of Spain is said to have laughed outright but once in his life; when his bride, Anne of Austria, wept at hearing that the queens of Spain had no feet, she having been told that they had no use for stockings. But, after all, what a capital, kindly, honest, jolly, glorious good thing a laugh is! It shuts the mouth of malice and opens the brow of kindness. There is no re-morse in it. It leaves no sting except in the sides, and that goes off. A woman has no natural grace more be-witching than a sweet laugh. It is like the sound of flutes on the water. It leaps from her heart in a clear, spark-ling rill, and the heart that hears it feels as if bathed in the cool, exhilarat-ing spring. How much we owe to the sweet laugh. It turns the prose of our life into poetry; it flings showers of sunshine over the darksome woods in which we are traveling; it touches with light even our sleep, which is no more the image of death, but gemmed with dreams that are the shadows of immor-tality.

MORALS AND CUSTOMS.

Dodging customs duties is rather a fashionable proceeding, and the law that permits foreign residents to bring in anything "necessary" for the comfort or convenience of their journey, in ac-cordance with their station in life," tends to an undemocratic discrimina-tion, says a writer in the Outlook. As a rule, it is the women who give the most trouble, for they never willingly surrender to the inevitable. It is in-teresting, furthermore, to notice what exceedingly childlike devices are em-ployed by the would-be smugglers.

Not long ago a fashionable woman of fine appearance and gracious man-ners arrived with her daughter. The girl's eyes were closed and her mother was leading her. She led her up to the acting deputy surveyor and explained that her daughter had recently gone blind, and was in so dangerously nerv-ous and hysterical a state that, as a special favor, she wished they would pass her trunks through without in-spection, because she feared that the excitement of having her trunks gone through might do the girl serious in-jury.

After very genuine expressions of re-gret and sympathy, the acting deputy directed one of the uniformed inspec-tors to make as swift and inconspicuous an inspection of these particular trunks as possible.

The trunks were found full of diti-able goods. Both mother and daughter flew into a temper, and the daughter's eyesight miraculously returned.

It will be remembered that at the time of President McKinley's funeral all business was suspended for the five minutes during which his coffin was being lowered into the grave. At that time the passengers of a large French steamer were having their baggage ex-amined. Of course the examination was stopped, and all the men uncovered.

A very large man, standing conspic-uously in the center of the dock, did not remove his silk hat. One of the inspectors, acting as a detective in civil-ian's clothes, stole up behind this im-posing gentleman and tipped his hat off with an umbrella. A dozen silver spoons clattered on the pier.

It Worked.

The young man had sold Mrs. Bean the cake of stain-remover the day be-fore. When he saw him enter the shop again he was unpleasantly impressed by the look on her determined counte-nance.

"Didn't take the stains from that shawl, madam?" he asked, quickly.

"I don't know whether it did or not," said Mrs. Bean, sternly. "You told me it had got to be left out on the grass overnight, and the stains would go. Well, they've gone—with the shawl. And now I want to know what you pro-pose to do about it?"

No Wonder.

"Jane," yelled the poet, "why don't you keep that kid quiet? What's the matter with it?"

"I'm sure I don't know," replied his patient wife. "I'm singing one of your lullabies to the little darling."—Philadelphia Press.

Stimulus.

"We hope to hear the speaker at his best."

"Then you'd better but a barrel of codfish on the platform. He's a gradu-ate of the grocery school of oratory."—Washington Herald.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a ma-jority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Cas-toria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Cas-toria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advo-cate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

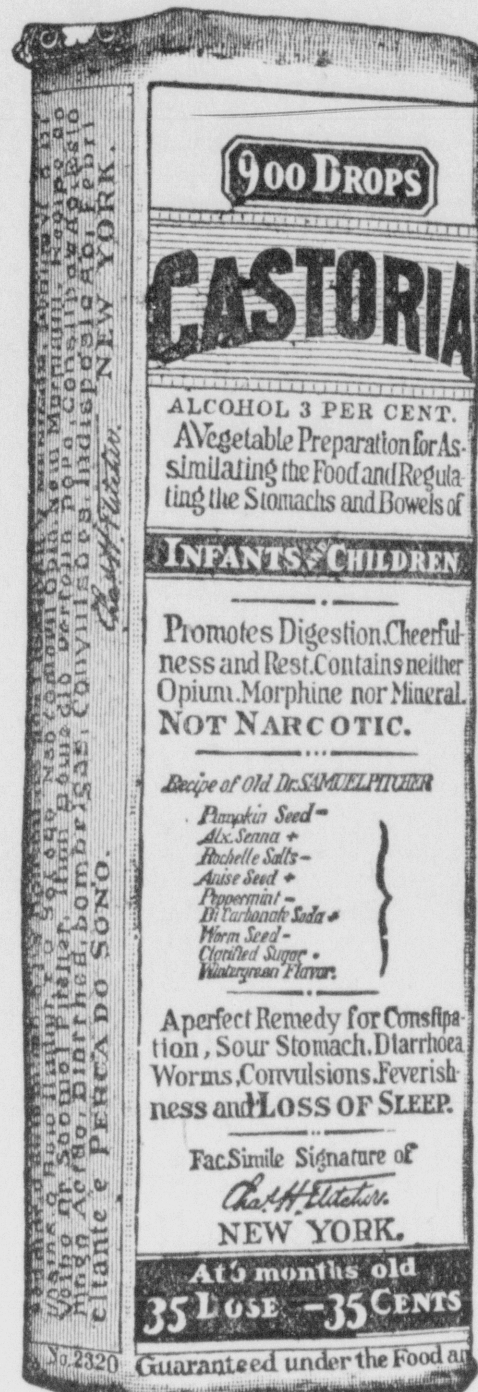

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other prop-rietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and chil-dren. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very ef-fective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

Side Lights on History.

Scott was writing the "Lay of the Last Minstrel."

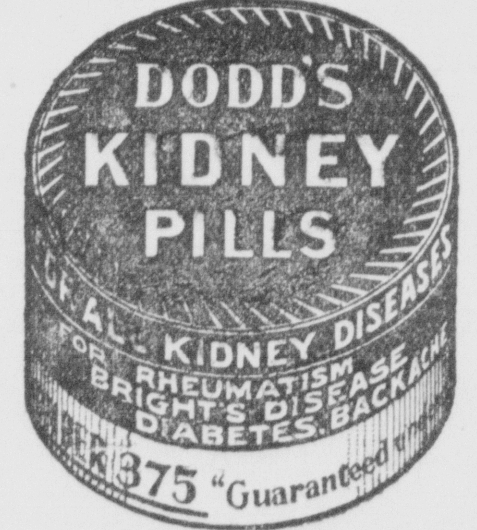

"After which," he muttered, with a grin smile, "with your kind permission, ladies and gentlemen, the gifted vocalist, Herr Spuytentuytel, will sing the pathetic ballad, entitled 'Mamma, Your Little Darling Is Too Full to Eat Any More!'"

For well he knew that there would be still later minstrels with other lays.

A Delicious Custard.

The recipe for this delicate dessert has been handed down in my family for many generations: Into each indi-vidual custard cup put the yolk of one egg, add one heaping teaspoonful of sugar, two gratings of nutmeg and five tablespoonfuls of sweet milk. Incorpor-ate thoroughly and set the cups in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven until firm. When cool, cover with a meringue, using the whites of the eggs for this purpose, and allow one tablespoonful of powdered sugar to the white of each egg. Through the very tiptop of each snowy mound drop a teaspoonful of orange marmalade.—De-lineator.

ITCHING HUMOR ON BOY.

His Hands Were a Solid Mass, and Disease Spread All Over Body—Cured in 4 Days by Cuticura.

"One day we noticed that our little boy was all broken out with itching sores. We first noticed it on his little hands. His hands were not as bad then, and we didn't think anything serious would result. But the next day we heard of the Cuticura Remedies being so good for itching sores. By this time the disease had spread all over his body, and his hands were nothing but a solid mass of this itc-hing disease. I purchased a box of Cut-icura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, and that night I took the Cuticura Soap and lukewarm water and washed him well. Then I dried him and took the Cuticura Ointment and anointed him with it. I did this every evening and in four nights he was entirely cured. Mrs. Frank Donahue, 208 Fremont St., Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 16, 1907."

THE SULTAN IS IN EARNEST

New Reforms Extend to Amnesty For Political Refugees.

GOOD NEWS FOR THOUSANDS

Turks, Armenians and Syrians Who Have Sought Safety and an Asylum in This Country Can Now Go Back Home Without Fear of Losing Their Heads by Autocratic Decree—Turkish Consul General Declares Proclamation of Amnesty to Have Been Made in Perfect Good Faith.

New York, July 31.—The sultan of Turkey, through the Turkish consul general in this city, Mundji Bey, has proclaimed general amnesty to all political fugitives regardless of race, in this country. This relates to about 200,000 Armenians and others in the United States. The reading of the announcement to a number of his countrymen by the consul general was greeted with cheers.

Mundji Bey said: "I regard it as the most important step forward that has yet been taken, in so far as it relates to Turkish subjects in the United States. There are some 400,000 Turkish citizens in this country, and more than 200,000 of these are political fugitives, men who have often longed to return to their old homes, but have feared to do so. These men may now go back to their country without fear."

Referring to the amnesty, the Turkish consul general, Mundji Bey, said: "The amnesty applies to political not criminal refugees. I am sure that those who have offended politically and have sought an asylum in this country will now return and help in the work of constructing a united nation. Turkey will now be as free as the United States. Shortly, if I mistake not, there will be a Turkish ambassador at Washington. Our aim will be to maintain the closest relations with the United States, as indeed, is natural, since the condition of citizens of this country will be our ideal for citizenship in Turkey."

"The proclamation is made in good faith and there will be no repetition of the czar's fiasco in regard to the Russian duma. Turkey will now take its former place among the nations of the world."

The consul general said he would be surprised if at least 100,000 Turkish subjects did not return to their native lands within the next month or so. Of the 50,000 Armenians, Syrians, and the like in this country, he estimated that 5,000 at least would depart within a very short time. Of Turkish refugees, he said, there were none here, but a large colony had settled in Providence, R. I.

Loeb Takes to the Woods.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 31.—Secretary Loeb left Oyster Bay this afternoon for his annual vacation. He will be away one month. First he will go to Portland, Me., and thence into the Maine woods, where he will be the guest of Oscar Straus, secretary of commerce and labor, at Mr. Straus's camp. After a week there he will go to the lake region of northern Minnesota for two weeks' fishing. During Mr. Loeb's absence his duties will be performed by his assistant, Rudolph Forester.

Eberhard Indicted.

Hackensack, N. J., July 31.—Gus Eberhard, the New York grocery store clerk, who recently shot and killed his aunt, Mrs. Ottillie Eberhard, on a lonely country road here, and then robbed her body of her life savings, has been indicted for murder in the first degree. Miss Ottillie Eberhard, who was also shot and wounded by her cousin, and Chief of Police Dunn were the only witnesses before the Bergen county grand jury which found the indictment.

The Vice President's Vacation.

Detroit, Mich., July 31.—Vice President Fairbanks and Mrs. Fairbanks arrived here Thursday afternoon from the tercentenary celebration at Quebec, and left three hours later for Mackinac Island, where they have taken a cottage for the remainder of the summer. "We had a most delightful week," said Vice President Fairbanks of his visit to Quebec. He declined to discuss politics.

THE GUNNESS CASE TAKES NEW ASPECT

Poison Revealed in Stomachs of Women and Children.

Laporte, Ind., July 31.—Coroner Mack has received from Dr. Walter Haines of Rush Medical college, Chicago, a report on the examination of the stomachs of Mrs. Belle Guinness and two of the children, which had been submitted to Dr. Haines for analysis. The expert reports that he found strychnine and arsenic in fatal amounts in each of the three stomachs. The theory that Mrs. Guinness murdered her children and then committed suicide is strengthened, in the opinion of many persons, by the unexpected developments in this matter.

Two weeks ago Dr. Haines found strychnine and arsenic in the stomach of Andrew Helgelein of Aberdeen, S. D., one of Mrs. Guinness's victims, and his report that he found in Mrs. Guinness's stomach and the stomachs of the children the same poisons has put a new phase on the case.

Many of those who have been contending that Ray Lamphere, held under six indictments for the murder of Andrew Helgelein, Mrs. Guinness and the three children, it being alleged that he set fire to the house and thereby caused the death of the woman and three children, after assisting Mrs. Guinness in killing Helgelein, was innocent, are today stronger in the assertion that Lamphere did not cause the death of the woman and her children.

Attorney Worden, who is looking after Lamphere's interests, said most emphatically that the finding of the poison showed conclusively that Lamphere could have had nothing to do with the deaths; that either some person murdered Mrs. Guinness and the children, and then fired the house, or else Mrs. Guinness killed her children in the same manner in which she had disposed of her victims, and then took a fatal draught herself.

The Commons Will Rule.

London, July 31.—The house of lords has passed the old age pensions bill with several amendments, which will be rejected by the house of commons. There is little doubt but that the lords will acquiesce to these rejections when the measure is returned to them.

To Bust Lumber Trust.

Austin, Tex., July 31.—While formal action has not yet been taken in this state against the alleged lumber trust, Attorney General Davidson, it is expected, will prepare papers in an ouster suit which will doubtless be filed in a few days.

IN FAVOR OF NON-UNIONISTS

Court Enjoins the Miners' Organization From Interference.

Carmi, Ill., July 30.—Judge Charles T. Moore of the circuit court issued a temporary injunction at Nashville, where he had been called to hear a restraining citation against the miners' union and the Federation of Labor at Winkle, Ill., to prevent interference with the non-union men at that place. The injunction was asked by the Eagle Mercantile company and the Winkle Mercantile company, which own practically all the mining and commercial interests in the little town. Winkle is in the heart of the coal belt. The restraining order has encouraged the non-union men, and many of them will seek work at Harrisburg and Eldorado, now that a court ruling has been promulgated.

General True Dead.

Kansas, Ill., July 30.—Brigadier General James M. True, eighty-five years old, is dead here of general debility. He was the first postmaster at Mattoon, Ill., and served two years as consul to Canada under Grant.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, causes nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well
